The New Phase in the Science of Nutrition.

By Esther Kliewer.

To-day we are living in the age of investigations and discoveries. What was reviv yesterday is old to-day, because som thing else has come to take its place. This is true in the arts and the sciences-in practically all fields that are of interest to the human race. It is therefore not surprising that in matters pertaining to our daily food our knowledge is increasing because of investigation and consequent discoveries. Only a short while ago, for instance, no one had heard of the word "vitamines," much less knew what it meant. Yet, vitamines play a very important part in the nutrition of our bodies and deserve more than a passing notice.

The word vitamine has come ints our vocabulary since the latest dictionaries were published. It means an "amine" that is essential to life and growth. The word was coined by Dr. Funk in 1912. It is a derivative from a Latin word meaning life. Before vitamines were diseovered everyone believer? that a balanced ration of the five food stuffs was the only consideration necessary in selecting menus and in promoting health and growth. However, experiments and discoveries soon proved that this was not the case. It was found that if a person was given pure fats, pure carbohydrates, pure proteins, and pure water, he was not as well as the person who received impure food stuffs, chemically speaking. These experiments led Chemists to the conclusion that there were some other essentials that were lacking and by extensive experimenting with rats, pigeons, and young chicks the effects, both of the absence and presence of vitamines, have been discovered.

Vitamines are divided into three classes; namely, fat soluable A, water B, and water soluble C. However, it is the water soluble B that this paper will primarily deal with.

Water soluble B occurs more widely in plants than in animal foods. The muscle tissue of animals is low in the water soluble vitamine, but the heart, kidney, brain, and liver are satisfactory sources of supply. Of the vegetables we find legumes; spinach, cabbage, potatoes, carrots, onions, turnips, beets, tomatoes, and the germ of grain richest in water soluble B. Yeast is distinctly the richest known source for the water soluble vitamine, for it is four times as efficient as dried spinach and dreid spinach ranks next among the group. Immature clover and alfalfa show a decided advantage over the mature.

This same difference holds true of most vegetables. Leafy vegetables are especially desirable for water soluble B. Sweet corn is one of the most important crops to furnish vitamines during the late season. Of the varous kinds the yellow corn carries the bggest amount. Perhaps it is the color of carrots that has led to the current belief that it is especially rich in vitamines.

Bethel College Monthly

Water soluble B is retained by acids, because the acids prevent deterioration of vitamines. Strong alkalies on the other hand, seem to destroy their activity. Corn breads are robbed of vitamines because of the baking soda used. Canning also destroys vitaminies with the exception of canned tomatoes. These probably retain their vitamines because of the acid. Water soluble B is not very stable in the presence of heat. However, rapid and ordinary heating will not destroy vitamine. Care should be taken not to store vegetables more than three months because storing also tends to destroy the water soluble.

The absence of water soluble B brings on diseases of which beriberi is the principal representative. In animals and fowls the same disease is recognized under the name polyneurites. Beriberi has doubtless killed thousands of people. In trying to discover what causes it a great deal about food nutrition has been learned in the past fifteen years, the main discovery being that of vitamines soluble B. Beriberi causes the discontinuation of growth in animals, the hair becomes very rough and often falls out Nervousness is another sympton of the disease beriberi. There is not much danger of beriberi in spring and summer because of an abundance of fresh vegetables, but in winter when such foods have to be stored for some time the source of water soluble $B$ becomes a problem.

"Now It Can Be Told"

is the title of a book written by Sir Philip Gibbs about the European War. He was one of the newspaper correspondents that were sent out from London at the beginning of the war. He did such grood service that after his return he was knighted by the English government. He says that during the war he was only a chronicler of events and told the facts as he found them, as far as the censor would allow. Now, however, he tells what he was not permitted to tell then. His purpose in writing the book is to get the truth of this war and all war as it was revealed to him and others by experience and reflection. The import of the book is an indictment against war-"the senselessness of it! The futility! The waste! The mockery of men's faith in God!" He describes incidents in camps, in the trenches, and in the bombarded cities. He follows the armies in the terrible battle of the Somme and notes the horrible slaughter of men on both sides. He intimates that brutalities were committed not only by one side. He denies the truth of the atrocity stories, such as the crucifixion of soldiers, the cutting off of children's hands, and other tales that were such sweet morsels on the tongues of war agitators. The book closes with a chapter entitled, "For what men died." This chapter is especially valuable for the analysis of causes of the war and for the conclusions. which the author reaches. A few quotations may be of interest.
"It is the belief of many brooding minds that almost as great as the direct guilt of the German war lords was the guilt of the whole political party of Europe, whose secret diplomacy (unrevealed to the people.) was based upon hatred and fear and rivalry, in play for imperial power and the world's markets, as common folk play dominoes for penny points, and risking the lives of common folk in a gamble for enormous stakes of territory, imperial prestige, the personal vanity of politicians, the vast private gains of trusts and profiteers. To keep the living counters quiet, to make them jump into the pool of their own free will at the word 'Go,' the statesmen, diplomats, trusts, and profiteers debauch the name of patriotism, raise the watchword of liberty, and play upon the ignorance of the mob easily, skillfully, by inciting them to race hatred, by inflaming the brute passion in them, and by concocting a terrible mixture of false idealism and self-interest, so that simple minds quick to respond to sentiment, as well as those quick to hear the call of the beast, rally shoulder to shoulder and march to the battle grounds under the spell of that potion."
"France has not won the war by her terms of peace nor safeguarded her frontiers for more than a few uncertain years. By harking back to the old philosophy of militarism she has re-established peril amid a people drained of blood and deeply in debt. Her support of reactionary forces in Russia is to establish a government which will guarantee the interest on French loans and organize a new military regime in alliance with France and England."
"My own belief is that the war was no proof against the Christian faith, but rather is a revelation that we are as desperately in need of the spirit of Christ as at any time in the history of mankind. But I think the clergy of all nations, apart from a heroic and saintly few, subordinated their faith, which is a gospel of charity, to national limitations. They were patriots before they were priests, and their patriotism was sometimes as limited, as narrow, as fierce, and as bloodthirsty as that of the people who looked to them for truth and light. They were often fiercer, narrower, and more desirous of vengeance than the soldiers who fought, because it is now a known truth that the soldiers, German and Austrian, French and Italien and British, were sick of the unending slaughter long before the ending of the war, and would have made a peace more fair than that which now prevails if it had been put to the common vote in the trenches; whereas the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of "Cologne, and the clergy who spoke from many pulpits in many nations, under the Cross of Christ, still stoked up the fires of hate, and urged the armies to go on fighting 'in the cause of justice,' 'for the defence of the Fatherland,' 'for Christian righteousness,' to the bitter end. These words are painful to write, but as I am writing this book for truth's sake, at all cost, I let them stand."
"In the peace terms that followed there was but little trace of those splendid ideas which had been proclaimed by President Wilson. On one point after another he weakened, and was beaten by the old militarism which sat enthroned in the councilchamber, with its foot on the neck of the enemy."

From Other Schools.

In the year 1882 Cornell University had 384 students. In 1919-1920 there were 5765 students who were regularly enrolled, besides nearly 2,000 who received instruction of some sort. The value of its endowment is $$ 17,000,000$ and its income from all sources, $$ 2,650,500$.

In most of the English universities women are now admitted on equal terms with men. Cambridge, however, is an exception. By a recent vote, full membership in the university was refused to women.

Verily the professor has his foibles. He is a high-brow, it must be confessed. Somehow he likes to diseuss the theory of relativity better that he does the latest jazz. If he manages to own a car, it is probably a flivver rather than a limousine. Presumably his wife has no maid, and household luxuries are simple. But he is happy and proud of his calling.
-University of Iowa Service Bulletin.
According to an investigation made by Mr. Guy Morrison Walker, a New York lawyer and financier, the largest number of successful men, popularly so-called, come from the small colleges. In a list of such colleges prepared by him the first dozen were small church schools, with the exception of two universities, of which one ranked fourth and the other ninth. These universities had a compapratively small attendance.

Ottawa (Kans.) University is erecting two new buildings, a science hall and a central heating plant. The work on both has benn somewhat delayed by wet weather and shortage of material, but they will soon be ready for use. A boarding hall is also included in their building program for the near future.

A recent survey of the present accupations of the 352 members of the class of 1910 of Cornell University offers some interesting comparisons. Reckoned by professions, the number engaged and their average incomes are as follows: 10 bankers and brokers, $$ 11,040$; 36 manufacturers, $$ 8,524 ; 18$ physicians, $$ 7,944 ; 7$ architects, $$ 7,230 ; 31$ merchants, $$ 7,136 ; 29$, lawyers, $$ 5,905$; 41 salesmen, $$ 5,690 ; 3$ purchasing agents, $$ 5,600 ; 4$ advertising men, $$ 5,476 ; 5$ newspaper men, $$ 5,180 ; 5$ accountants and statisticians, $$ 5,504 ; 6$ insurance men, $$ 4$, $533 ; 14$ farmers, $$ 4,461$; 15 builders and contractors, $$ 4,287 ; 7$ veterinarians, $$ 3,921 ; 83$ engineers, $$ 3,724$; 33 teachers, $$ 3,137$. Teachers are at the bottom of the list, even though the average income of this class is much larger than the average of the country. Gradually the nation is being aroused to its needs, but much still remains to be done.

- University of Iowa Service Bulletin.

MISCELLANEOUS.

This issue of the Bethel College Monthly was delayed for a whole month or more. We hope that we can gradually make up the time and publish the following numbers a little more regularly.
In our next number we shall bring a report of our Bible course. Other matter that should have appeared before this time will also receive attention.

Payments on subscriptions have been coming in rather slowly. As a result most likely of the general financial depression. We hope that conditions will soon improve and business affairs will again go their regular course.

Owing to the financial depression, which is only momentary we hope, the building program has been put off for a time. Special efforts have to be made first of all to secure the funds necessary to carry on the work of the school as it is now outlined.

The entire object of true education is to make people not merely do the right thing's, - but enjoy the right things - not merely industrious, but to love industry not merely learned, but to love knowledgenot merely pure, but to love purity- not merely justice, but to hunger and thirst after justice. -Ruskin.

Prof. Edgar Reine, who is a noted lecturer and who has traveled for the U. S. Treasury department, will give an illustrated lecture about Alaska on March 15 or 16 in the College chapel at $7: 30$ P. M. The lecture will be educational, everybody ought to be interested. The definite date will be announced later in the Bethel Breeze. Admission, 35 c .
